Please make sure handwriting is legible or the document is typed. Include your name, address, and phone number on the manuscript. If using a computer, save the file in the ASCII [.TXT], or WordPerfect 5.1 word processing format and enclose the disk, along with a hard copy of the article. The disks can be either 5-1/4" or 3-1/2" size. References/footnotes should be indicated as such and placed at the end of the article. The Editor will arrange for the placement of footnotes or end notes in the final layout. Material should be limited to a published length of approximately five typeset pages. The right to edit material for presentation, grammar, and form is reserved by the editorial staff, and all material submitted becomes the property of the Society.

Most of our efforts during the last two years have gone toward planning for the National Genealogical Conference 8-11 May 1996. It has now come and gone. To all of you who participated in any way, we say thanks for a job well done. Letters have come to several of us commending us for this "smashing success." It is because so many have done their jobs so well; so please stand tall and be proud of our success.

The roles played by the Tennessee State Library and Archives which registered over 2000 people doing research that week and the Public Library of Nashville and Davidson County which had an exhibit booth and an on-line demonstration of our holdings are to be commended. Cracker Barrel furnished gifts for all registrants on Wednesday evening and, for those who visited The Nashville Room, Christie Cookies provided cookies in the auditorium across the hall which was staffed by volunteers.

The opening session, attended by 1200 people, began with an exciting skit "Alice in Wonderland" written by Paul E. Shetter starring Wesley Paine as Alice and Brian T. Hill as the rabbit. At the National Genealogical Society (NGS) banquet various awards were presented. As president, I was most pleased to accept an award for the Middle Tennessee Genealogical Society. The accompanying letter recognized "the outstanding contributions of the members of the Middle Tennessee Genealogical Society in the successful planning, preparations, and presentation of the sixteenth annual Conference in the States." On another occasion, awards on merit were presented to Shirley Wilson, Gale Bamman, Chuck Sherrill and me. Certificates of appreciation were given to all the committee chairs at the Tuesday evening reception hosted by NGS. The General Jackson cruise and the Opry performance went off well and were enjoyed by about 500 people each. The lecturers were praised for their presentations. Those individuals who had attended many conferences praised this one in Nashville. There was a definite pulling together of the local group in this big undertaking.

There were eleven participating societies involved and eight local supporting societies who helped with publicity. It was a pleasure to work closely with NGS and especially Carolyn J. Nell, NGS President. I commend the entire staff to you for their helpfulness since the conference required local and national cooperation.

Tennessee has been known as the Volunteer State since the War of 1812 when so many volunteered to serve. This conference was an example of Tennessee volunteerism and pride. NGS was first asked to come to Nashville in 1996 because it was our Bicentennial year. I hope that you noticed the huge sign in the Exhibit Area which proclaimed that this conference was a Bicentennial Event, a definite part of Tennessee 200. It will go down in history as our contribution to Tennessee's Bicentennial Celebration. Not only was MTGS pleased with this designation but also Tennessee 200, State Bicentennial Celebration officials. I am now collecting the official documents to send to them so that our event, along with others, will be in their files proclaiming our part in the Celebration of Tennessee's Statehood. These documents will include the syllabus with its state and local proclamations concerning Family Heritage Month, the program and registration information and the program itself as well as other items of interest, including local press coverage.

The Society has grown almost 25 per cent in the past 18 months. Commencing with this issue, there will be an increase in the number of pages per issue – from 48 to 56!

Members are encouraged to submit unpublished primary source material of genealogical and historical importance. New and old members should read the guidelines, list of addresses, and other information printed on the inside front cover of the Journal.

The last issue of Volume IX of the Journal included the yearly index. It is hoped that we can continue the practice which is a move recommended by librarians that also saved the Society money in printing and mailing costs. Although Volume IX's index was a full-name index, we plan to include place-names in the future listings. Our thanks go to Sue Edwards and Martha Bond who volunteered to index our past two years of quarterly publications. There was quite a time crunch at one point when both years' index preparations were culminating to fruitation within the same week, and both went above and beyond the call of duty.

A journal of this magnitude cannot be assembled four times a year without the aid of a supportive editorial staff, and especially of those members whose duties include reoccuring columns. I wish to thank Irene Griffey, Gale Williams Bamman, Sue Edwards, Bobby Ezell, Carol Hughes Gipson, Jean Herndon, William D. Jackson, Dorothy Scott Johnson, Betsy Ragsdale, Barbara Sistler, Mary Sue Smith, George Watson, and Shirley Wilson – all have performed in a professional manner, which makes my job a lot easier.

A Legacy

By Harriet Vivion, Ph.D

NE OF THE MOST VALUABLE BIBLES which I have in a small collection of several unique editions is a small New Testament which I cannot even read. It is written in the Cherokee syllabary devised by Sequoya, a Tennessean whose contribution to our history is being recognized in Bicentennial celebrations this year, and for good reason. However, the inherent value in this small volume for me is the personal history which it holds for my family.

The Cherokees are the only American Indians with a syllabary by one of their own people. George Guess, or Sequoya, was born about 1770 in the Cherokee village of Tuskegee on the Tennessee River in what was later to become Tennessee. He was a lame, uneducated, half-cast, the son of a Cherokee mother and an unidentified white man. He seemed an unlikely candidate for the task of inventing a written language. Yet, being an able linguist with the spoken word, he did; and made an immeasurable contribution to the education and spiritual development of his people. It was in honor of his achievements and deeds that the great redwoods came to be called Sequoias.

Impressed with the power and value of the written word, Sequoya felt that to provide a means whereby the Cherokees would be literate would give them advantages which he saw were had by the white men. At first he tried to devised a sign, or picture, for each word, which he found too unwieldy. He then tried to find patterns in parts of words. Using an old English spelling book which he could not read, he adapted the letters to the sounds he heard. He found that 86 letters would represent every sound in the Cherokee language. In spite of ridicule and persecution, after 12 years of trial and error in 1825 his syllabary was complete. Then followed a long struggle to persuade his people to use the writing. It proved easy to learn and use, was eventually accepted and remains in use for all Cherokee literature, including translations of the books of the Bible.

Though Christian missionaries had tried without success for years to transcribe the Cherokee language into written form, with Sequoya's syllabary they were then able to disseminate the New Testament and other religious writings.<sup>2</sup> As early as 1829 a Cherokee version of the Book of Matthew was published, and in 1833 the Book of Acts, at New Echota, Georgia, In 1838 The Gospel of John was published at Park Hill, Indian Territory, USA. These were all translated by Samuel A. Worcester, a missionary at a Cherokee school in Georgia, and mixed-blood Elias Boudinot, editor of the Cherokee newspaper, the Cherokee Phoenix, and the first president of the American Bible Society.<sup>3</sup> Other Biblical translations into the Cherokee syllabary followed between the years 1840 and 1859, including all New Testament books and Genesis and Exodus. The complete New Testament was printed in 1860 by the American Bible Society. The places of publication, from New Echota to Talequah, gave testimony to the move from Georgia to the Indian Territory west of the Mississippi River.

New Testament in the Cherokee Language, printed 1860, and Cherokee Bell, both in the possession of author

The Cherokees had begun to migrate into Arkansas Territory by 1817, with George Guess, the great Sequoya being among the first. Some of these migrants had moved on into what would later be Oklahoma by 1819. By the twenties and thirties the great removal treaties forced many Indians, the Cherokees in the Trail of Tears, to move and settle around the forts. The Cherokees established a capitol at Talequah, then in the Indian Territory, later Oklahoma.

NTHE EARLY 1800s THE INDIANS IN THE Southeastern states were exposed to the message of the gospel. They were considered by Christian evangelists to belong to Five Civilized Tribes, the Chickasaws, the Choctaws, the Creeks, the Seminoles and the Cherokee. In

1821, Dr. William Capers (later Bishop Capers) was appointed by Bishop William McKendree of the Methodist Episcopal Church to be a missionary to the Creeks.<sup>5</sup> In 1822, Richard Neely of the Tennessee Conference began work among the Cherokee.<sup>6</sup> "The Indians...responded to the lively Methodist services, in which each person present was permitted, even urged, to add his voice to the din of noisy supplication." <sup>7</sup>

When the Indians were moved to the Indian Territory west of Arkansas, the need for continual mission to the Indian was keenly felt by the Methodists. There were over 1,000 Methodists among the Cherokee, including John Ross their principal chief, famous in Chattanooga history. There were 3,000 among the Choctaws and Chicasaws. and fewer among the Creeks and Seminoles. In 1831 The Tennessee and Missouri Conferences sent missionaries to the Indians.8 The work continued to grow, and in 1836, when Arkansas became a state, the Arkansas Annual Conference was organized and divided into six districts. including the new Indian Mission.

The Methodist General Conference of May 1, 1844 in New York was very troubled. Bishop Soule, as presiding Bishop, opened the conference, which immediately began a dispute over slavery and abolition. Bishop James O. Andrew, who was a slave holder legally in the State of Georgia but without his consent, was suspended from his episcopal duties. Dr. John B. McFerrin of the Tennessee Conference proposed a constitutional plan for a "mutual and friendly division of the church,"9 north and south.

Another historical decision was made at this 1844 Conference. The work of the Indians was going so well that the general conference authorized the organization of the Indian Mission Conference, which covered a broad area north and south from Texas to Montana, west to the Rocky Mountains, and east to Arkansas and Missouri. This large territory belonged to the Arkansas and Missouri episcopal area. Bishop Thomas A. Morris presided over the first annual conference ever held in Oklahoma at Taleguah, calling the meeting to order on October 23, 1844, at Riley's Chapel, named for a famous Methodist Cherokee family.

The division of the Methodist Episcopal Church into northern and southern divisions presaged the same division of the country, and over much the same issues. By the 1860's the nation was in a civil war. The Indians were for the most part noncommittal on the debate; but moved in greater numbers toward the Rebel Cause. Much of the work of the Conference had been maintained by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The Indians of the Indian Mission Conference were swept into the conflict. Many of the indigenous leaders enlisted in the Confederate cause and were never heard from again. One of the better known was Stand Watie, recognized for his heroic service at Pea Ridge in Arkansas and in other battles on a 1996 stamp commemorating heroes of the Civil War.

After a severe drought in 1860 across all Indian Territory, 10 and terrible atrocities committed toward the Indians during the war, the Indian Mission Conference had suffered great loses. They were not able to convene annual conferences in the years 1862 and 1863. 11 In September of 1864, nine members of the Indian Mission Conference met and attempted reorganization. No bishop was present. The distressing days of reconstruction began. The Indians had lost loved ones, cattle, possessions, homes, and were now on the verge of losing their land. In September of 1865 the Conference again convened with eight preachers present. Again, no bishop was there to preside. 12

Bishop Enoch Mather Marvin

In May of 1866 the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South met in New Orleans. At that conference, Enoch Mather Marvin was elected bishop on the first ballot. His first episcopal district comprised the Indian Mission, Texas, East Texas, Northwest and West Texas Conferences. But for the Indian Mission he did a special work.

The Indian Mission Conference met in its twenty-first session, presided over by Bishop Marvin on September 12, 1866. <sup>14</sup> In spite of traveling difficulties, he was present on time and opened the conference with the usual religious exercises. Little regular business was done, though each prescribed question was taken up in order. There were seven members of the Conference present, greatly discouraged, as there was no appropriation and no other probability of support. It seemed impossible to continue the Methodist work. It seemed they would be abandoned as a field of labor, and that this would be the last meeting of this Conference.

Bishop Marvin informed the Conference that at the Meeting of the Missionary Board in May it was determined that they could do nothing to salvage the work of the Indian Mission Conference for another year, and would probably discontinue the Conference. "Lo, the poor Indian, and his missionary friends were lost sight of" in the ensuing turmoil of war. "What are a few thousand poor savage Indians to our...Church honor?"15 This seemed to be the prevailing sentiment of the church leaders in those difficult years and circumstances. "Upon which Bishop Marvin said, if the Board would allow him, he would undertake to sustain the Conference for one year by personal effort, and would raise five thousand dollars for that purpose." 16

"He met the emergency. The Conference was held, and the preachers appointed to their circuits. He then drew on himself for $5000, in

Bishop Enoch Mather Marvin (1823-1877)

As bishop for the Tennessee Conference for one year, he presided over the Annual Conference which was held in Gallatin, October 7-13, 1874. Following news of his death in November of 1877, a memorial service was held at McKendree Methodist Church South in Nashville; and delegates were sent to the funeral in St. Louis.

quarterly installments, to support them—and when his routine of official work was done he spent the winter traveling through the Church at large, pleading the cause of the Indians, and putting money into the empty treasury to meet his drafts. He saved our Indian Mission—and this act signalized his first year in the episcopacy." <sup>17</sup>

In gratitude for his encouragement, both fiscally and spiritually, Bishop Marvin was presented with several tokens of love from the Oklahoma Indian Mission Conference. One was a cherished New Testament in the Cherokee language printed by the American Bible Society in 1860.

A report of the celebration of the Sesquicentennial of this Conference in 1994<sup>18</sup> evidences the thriving work of the Conference today. I take joy in the reports, knowing that my great-grandfather was personally responsible for seeing to it that the work continued in a desperate day, and with no small sacrifice to himself. And I have a little New Testament in Cherokee to stand as testimony.

Tennessee State Library & Archives Report On NGS Conference Week May 6-11, 1996

By Chuck Sherrill, TSLA Director of Public Services, and Conference Program Co-Chair

The Tennessee State Library & Archives broke attendance records every day during the NGS Conference. Nearly 2,000 people passed through the doors during that week, and the staff were kept busy answering questions, retrieving materials and helping insure that every one got a turn at the microfilm readers and copiers.

Most of the visitors were from outside the state of Tennessee, with the largest group coming from Texas. Other states as far away as Washington and Maine were also represented among library users, proving that Tennessee's historic trails have led its descendants all across the continent.

Visitors to the Library & Archives were especially interested in land records and early military records, including the War of 1812. From this we deduced that many of the attendees had ties to ante-bellum Tennessee, rather than to the Civil War period or later. The staff worked with genealogists who had a high level of expertise, and enjoyed helping people who were digging into some of the more difficult types of records. We noticed that these researchers were not daunted by the lack of indexes and were eager to try unusual sources, welcoming our suggestions.

In the manuscripts area, out archivists were kept busy bringing original materials out for conference visitors to use. The most frequently requested items were early maps and case files of the state Supreme Court. In the other areas, books and microfilm were used and discarded with great speed, and our staff and volunteers extended an all-out effort to help keep things in order for the next food of users.

Working overtime and straining to meet the needs of such a hugh number of clients was made less difficult by the pleasant attitude of the conference attendees. Everyone on the staff received warm thanks from the visitors, and we were heartened by their encouragement and friendliness.

Would we do it again? You bet. But we'd like a chance to catch our breath first!

By Gale Williams Bamman and Charles A. Sherrill, National Program Co-Chairs

On all levels the 1996 NGS/CIS, hosted by the Middle Tennessee Genealogical Society, was a success, with many attendees saying it was the best conference in recent memory—not only as to program, but also as to the spaciousness of the facilities, the relaxed atmosphere, and the congeniality of the volunteers.

Certainly the numbers were impressive, with a final count of somewhat over 1,950 registrants. Of the seventy-three speakers who accepted our invitations to lecture, not one backed out or had to cancel at the last minute—surely a record! Their presentations covered a broad mix of topics, but the most popular ones were the methodology lectures in the Skill-Building Track, officially "recommended by the Board for Certification of Genealogists." Those sessions had standing room only, in nearly every hour. Also, Tennessee topics drew large numbers, as did the computer-related lectures.

Of course there were problems along the way. At every session, it seemed, there were new fires to be put out—a speaker whose microphone wouldn't work, a room with too few chairs, an overhead projector with a blurry image. With the help of the excellent staff at the convention center and the hotel, as well as from the crew at Allied Audio-Visual, these wrinkles were ironed out usually before attendees were even aware of them.

Unexpected mechanical failures added to the excitement. One elevator repeatedly held attendees hostage. On the first instance, Chuck offered to sing to them, but the folks inside wisely declined the invitation, and emerged shortly afterwards, shaken and slightly green. Some of those were seen immediately boarding adjoining elevators—a plucky bunch, wouldn't you agree? Even

Shirley Wilson, the local arrangements co-coordinator and one of the busiest people at the conference, spent some tense moments locked up; but her trusty walkie-talkie came, yet again, to the rescue.

Perhaps the biggest challenge came on Saturday, when 5,000 teenagers invaded the convention center for a session of "Acquire the Fire." They clogged the stairs and escalators and made lots of goodnatured noise. Chuck made a dandy policeman at the bottom of the stairs, waving the young folks one direction and genealogists the other.

The track layout of the conference and the new design of the program directory (a walletsized booklet) were enthusiastically received, with suggestions that these become a standard at future meetings. Overheard were comments that this year's syllabus (under the care of Dorothy Williams Potter) was the best any conference has had. Thanks to the hard work of Kay McGee, the participating society luncheons were flawless; and monitors and introducers were present for every session, a monumental task well handled by Irene Griffey. Computer Labs were expertly managed by Bill Jackson. These were directly involved with the program, but there were many others who spent tireless hours in other areas of the conference planning and logistics, and a full listing will be given in Shirley and Mary Glenn's

After two years of program planning and nearly constant attention to details, it is with pride that Chuck and I can now look back, along with the other volunteers, and say, "We did it! And, we did a good job!" It was a sometimes overwhelming experience, but one that resulted in the greatest of finales—a well-run and well-attended conference! GWB

THE FINAL WORD

By Shirley Wilson and Mary Glenn Hearne, Local Arrangements Co-Chairs

Much has already been said in this journal about the National Genealogical Society Conference in the States. What it takes to make a good conference is interesting and informative lectures, thorough planning, efficient chair persons, current computer labs, exciting exhibits, cooperation between NGS and the local society and lots of volunteer help. We had all of that and thus we had a great conference. I believe we've put Tennessee and most especially the Middle Tennessee Genealogical Society on the map! I have just one thing to add...

THANKS!

Everyone deserves praise for the role they played in this success—from those in charge of the various committees, to the room monitors who gave up going to lectures they wanted to attend to monitor ones of lesser interest, to the nice man from Alabama who worked all week at the Registration Booth while his wife attended the conference. I don't know his name, but we appreciate what he did.

Someone asked me if I'd be willing to do this again. My response, "That's like asking a woman who has just delivered a 10 pound baby if she wants to have another!" But after some thought, I realized that just maybe I'd do it again—if I could have the same group of volunteers to help.

Listed alphabetically below are local MTGS members and friends of members who did so very much. Many others helped in many ways and you know who you are. Thanks, just one more time to all of you.

- ♦ Alice in Wonderland and the Rabbit at the opening ceremony were portrayed by Wesley Paine and Brian T. Hill.
- ❖ Batey Gresham was Special Projects Chairman and responsible for obtaining that great Cracker Barrel participation.
  - ♦ Anne Bowden was responsible for the conference room mate program.

- Irene Griffey as Program/Support Chairwoman set up the easels listing lecture sessions and scheduled introducers and room monitors.
- Pat Hastings, Registration Chair, was responsible for a formidable amount of work and the scheduling of many volunteers.
- ❖ Jim Hawkins was one of the key players as Exhibits Chairman with wife Betty as his assistant.
- William Jackson, Computer Center Manager and his two assistants Elliott Pood and Robert Spires played a major role in the conference.
- ❖ Kay McGee, was Participating Societies Chairwoman, responsible for those great luncheons we all enjoyed. Norm McGee handled ADA requests and provided Registration assistance.
- ❖ Juanita Patton served as the Steering Committee Secretary and as assistant to the Registration Chair
- ❖ Karl Payton was Audiovisual Chairmen, responsible for making certain that the proper equipment was available and functioning.
- ❖ Dorothy Potter, acting as Publications Chairwoman, prepared the huge publication known as the syllabus.
- ❖ Donna Powell was Packet Registration Chair and in charge of collecting and assembling the goodie packets.
- Jean Rowlett handled requests from other societies for local pre-conference programs.
- ♦ Barbara Sistler was Publicity Chair, responsible for all local publicity and registration form mailings.
- ♦ Sue Smith was Events Chairwoman for MTGS, with responsibility for the General Jackson Cruise, the Opry tickets and the MTGS display.
- ♦ Nida Wheeler, as Hospitality Chair, staffed the Information Booth, answered questions and fulfilled registrants' requests. SW

REVOLUTIONARY WAR PENSION PUZZLE SOLVED Declaration of Mary Worley, Marshall County, Tennessee

Contributed by Don Allen

The following Revolutionary War Pension Application was written by Mary Worley of Marshall County in 1840. The application was subsequently rejected due to confusion over the applicant's name being erroneously written as Mary Morley on the application file folder when it was submitted to the War Department in Washington, D.C. No response was ever provided to Mary Worley, the applicant, because no one realized the mistake until this century. When the error was finally discovered during an August 17, 1906 review in the War Department Pension Agency, the name was corrected accordingly. Of course by that time if Mary Worley were still alive she would have been 149 years old.

According to the records, the application was mailed on November 4, 1840, and there is no indication of any correspondence pertaining to this application. However, it is interesting to note that in the records of the 1850 inventory list of suspended or held pensions, Mary Marley of Marshall County, Tennessee, is listed as "held" because the "sender is unknown."

Mary Worley and Lovett Worley were the parents of Moses Worley of Marshall County, Tennessee. Moses Worley was born 1785 in Halifax County, North Carolina, and removed to the Williamson County area circa 1810. He married Elizabeth Davis in 1811. Moses Worley died 1862 in Marshall County and is buried in Worley's cemetery located off Findlay Beech Road, Lewisburg, Tennessee. Mary Worley died in 1850 in Wilson County, Tennessee, where she lived with other Worley relatives until her death.

These documents were transcribed from a copy of the Revolutionary War microfilm series M805 located in the Tennessee State library and Archives by the contributor, a descendant of Moses Worley. For more information, address Don Allen, 225 Orchard Pint, Zionsville, IN 46077.

Declaration of Mary Worley

State of Tennesse Marshall County

On this the 3rd day of August 1840 personally appeared before the county court of Marshall, state of Tennessee, Mary Worley a resident of said county aged eighty two years who, being duly sworn according to law, doth, on her oath, make the following declaration in order to obtain the benefits of the provisions of the act of congress passed the 4th July 1836 entitled, "An Act Supplementary to an Act for the relief of certain officers and soldiers of the Revolution;" That she is the widow of Lovett Worley who was a soldier of the North Carolina line of the Army of the Revolution, that he enlisted in Halifax county North Carolina early in the war she thinks in the regiment commanded by Col. Martin, was in the battles of Camden and Cow Pens then at the surrender of Lord Cornwallis at Yorktown, and continued in service some months after that period.

She further declares that she was married to the said Lovett Worley on the 18th day of June seventeen hundred and eighty and distinctly recollects that her first child was just seven months old at the time of lord Cornwallis' surrender, that her husband the afforesaid Lovett Worley died in the year Seventeen Hundred Ninety Six, that she has never been married since that period. She further declares that there is no family record it having been lost together with her husbands discharge which she had often seen after his death through the negligence of the Administrator.

Sworn to and subscribed the day and date above written, Martin W. Oakley

Recipe for Virginia Ash Cake<sup>1</sup>

Add a teaspoonful of salt to a quart of sifted corn meal. Make up with water and knead well. Make into round, flat cakes. Sweep a clean place on the hottest part of the hearth. Put the cake on it and cover it with hot wood ashes.

Wash and wipe it dry, before eating it. Sometimes a cabbage leaf is placed under it and one over it, before baking, in which case it need not be washed.

BOOK REVIEWS

by Shirley Wilson, CG

Abstracts of Giles County, Tennessee County Court Minutes 1813-1816, and Circuit Court Minutes 1810-1816 by Carol Wells. Softback 5 1/4 x 8 1/4, complete name index, copyright 1995. Purchase from Heritage Books, Inc., 1540-E Pointer Ridge Pl., Suite 300, Bowie, MD 20716. $16.50 plus $4 shipping and handling, Visa/MasterCard/Checks/Money Orders are accepted.

Giles County was formed in 1809 from Maury County. The early court minutes include references to remarriages, heirs, apprenticeships, orphans, ferries, paternity suits, land disputes and miscellaneous county matters.

The book is arranged chronologically and has an every name index. While the print is just a little small, it is quite legible. Folks who appear nowhere else in the county records, can often be found in court minutes which are extremely tedious and time consuming to search.

David Young and Sarah Phillips Descendants, Wilson County, Tennessee 1796-1994 by Clarice Neal and Ella Young. Hardbound, 8 1/2 x 11, 356 pp., complete name index, 1995. Purchase from Mrs. Joe W. Neal, 2209 Shoal Creek, Austin, TX 78705. $25 plus $4 postage and handling.

David Young was born in Virginia in 1774 and married Sarah "Sally" Phillips on 6 December 1796 in Davidson County, Tennessee. They lived and died in Wilson County, Tennessee and the book follows all eleven of their fourteen children who survived to adulthood.

The print is large, dark and easy to read. The author has used a variation of the New England Register System as a numbering system, an excellent method for keeping track of multiple generations. A section in the center of the books contains a map of the area, a deed, some news articles and photographs. There is a bibliography, although the book includes no footnoting.

An excellent every name index will be most appreciated by those utilizing this comprehensive genealogy.

Estate Settlements in Blount County, Tennessee Naming Heirs by Albert W. Dockter. Softback 5 1/4 x 8 1/4, complete name index, copyright 1996. Purchase from Heritage Books, Inc. see address and ordering information above. $14.00

This book is sub-titled, Extracted from: Execution Book II, Chancery Court, Feb. 1872 - Feb 1893; Execution Book II, County Court, Apr. 1893 - Feb. 1915; and the Workbook of James A. Greer, Clerk and Master, Chancery Court, 1885-1890.

What is important about this collection of materials is the fact that the final distributions of the estates are listed. The name of each heir is given along with the amount he or she received from the estate. With this information, it is possible to determine the relationship of each distributee to the decedent. This type of material is not often found in Tennessee estates where records of final accountings are few and far between.

This book is done in large, black print with an every name index and is a must for those with roots in Blount County.

MAURY COUNTY, TENNESSEE, NOTE

An anomaly has been discovered by member Dana Lowe who shares the following information:

"Maury County Will Book X has two sets of pages numbered 243 through 342. This occurred when the person who was numbering the pages by hand went from page 342 to number 243 on the following page—thus beginning a duplication of the previous 100 page numbers. Any item indexed between these sections in Will Book X could be in either the first or the second set of these pages. It is not a filming error, but exists in the original book. It can be confusing until you see what has happened."

MINUTES OF THE SUPERIOR COURT of NORTH CAROLINA and MERO DISTRICT

Abstracted and annotated by Dorothy Scott Johnson

At the time the Mero District was organized it included most of what is now Middle Tennessee, and North Carolina claimed ownership of the region. Thus the original name of the Court was "Superior Court of North Carolina, including Mero District." This court convened from 1788 until 1809.

In the 1930s the WPA Writers' Project transcribed minutes of this Court and entered them in four books which were then placed in the Tennessee State Library and Archives. What happened to the originals of these minutes seems to be unknown; they cannot be found at the State Library today, either in original or microfilmed form. Occasionally someone will erroneously cite the Davidson County Court minutes of the period as belonging to the Mero District, but perusal of those minutes prove conclusively that they are not the same. As a consequence, when publishing the Mero District court records we are limited to copying the WPA books instead of the originals.

All legal definitions are taken from Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition and will hereafter be referred to as "Black's." Many abbreviations in this work are not in Black's and appear to be the original clerk's own brand of legal shorthand. Since no log exists explaining the meaning of these abbreviations it is necessary to use them as they are written.

The page numbers given here are the pages of the WPA typed material, not the original page numbers unless so stated.

Daniel Young and Wife, Sarah vs. Frederick Stump

Case: Slander

Particulars: Daniel Young and Sarah Young, his wife, state that Sarah is a good, true and faithful citizen of Davidson Co., Mero District, and she has always been of good fame, credit and reputation. She has always been reputed as such by her neighbors and by many others persons of good substance in our Territory. She hath always lived honestly and uprightly, free and clear from all felonies, robberies, stealing or harboring negroes or liable to the several statues made concerning stealing, enticing, or harbouring of negroes.

Nevertheless, Stump contrived unjustly to prejudice, detract and injure Sarah so that her good name, credit, reputation and esteem of her neighbors was greatly diminished. Stump maliciously, openly and publicly stated to the Youngs, "The art a dam'd rogue; I can prove it! You harboured my negro Simon!"

These scandalous and malicious words not only prejudiced her good name, credit and reputation but much damnified her ability to transact her lawful affairs and deprived her of the society of her good neighbors and other good citizens of great worth and merit living remote from her, to the damage of Daniel Young and his wife in the amount of £500.

STRANGE TAX LISTS IN TENNESSEE'S FRONTIER COUNTIES

By Irene M. Griffey, CG

NDERSTANDING SEEMINGLY STRANGE TAX records in seemingly strange Tennessee counties requires a basic understanding of (1) the unusual jurisdiction of four governments in Tennessee, (2) the boundary lines of frontier counties, and (3) the unusual history of the transfer of Tennessee land from the government to the individual.

North Carolina's western land (the area now called Tennessee) extended west to the Mississippi River. Occupancy of frontier land usually consistently progressed from east to west, but there were some differences in Tennessee. Settlement in Tennessee began in the extreme northeast corner, on land obtained from the Indians by treaty, lease, and purchase. As the population and settlement increased, counties were formed to provide a government for the people living within the area. First, Washington District, then Washington and Sullivan Counties were formed. The western limit of Washington County extended to the Mississippi River. In 1783, Washington County was divided by a line surveyed from north to south. The western portion was named Greene County. It wrapped around Davidson County, which had been formed to provide a government for the military reservation and settlers along the Cumberland River, and extended westward to the Mississippi.1

On 6 October 1783, North Carolina opened a land office to dispose of her western (Tennessee) land. All vacant land not within the military reservation or the extreme southeast corner of Tennessee, where the Cherokee Indians were living, was available for purchase from this office. Two thousand six hundred and sixty-two warrants for land were issued before the office closed on 25 May 1784. Included in the land sold from this office were the highly desirable lands along the Mississippi River and its tributaries. The final step of receiving a grant was to have it recorded in the county where the land lay. Therefore, much of the land on the Mississippi River can be found recorded in Greene County during this period.2

In 1789, North Carolina ceded her ungranted

western land to the federal government and the Tennessee area became The Territory South of the River Ohio. The federal government ruled that land not acquired from the Indians could not be occupied until such acquisition was made. This was the reverse of the North Carolina view that the Indians had sacrificed their rights to the land when they assisted England in the revolution. The area not yet acquired by treaty included all of what is now referred to as West Tennessee.<sup>3</sup>

There were some pertinent clauses included in the cession deed from North Carolina to the United States, which are often overlooked. These clauses must be understood, since they affected the sale of land well into the 1800s. It is important to understand that the degree of title one owns is the degree of title acquired at purchase. Any restrictive clauses included in the deed of purchase remain effective until removed by laws passed to void them, or the grantor issues an agreement changing them. Included within the deed of cession from North Carolina to the United States were the following restrictive clauses:<sup>4</sup>

- If the military reservation did not include a "sufficient quantity of lands fit for cultivation," the soldier would be permitted to take his quota outside the military reservation.
- Entries already made, on which title had not been perfected, would have the same force and effect as if such cession had not been made.
- 3. All and every right of occupancy and pre-emption and every other right reserved by any act or acts to persons settled on and occupying lands within the limits of the land being ceded should continue to be in full force in the same manner as if the cession had not been made.
- 4. If entries made in the land office usually called John Armstrong's office, had been laid on land previously entered by others, those entries could be moved to another location.

In today's vernacular, this virtually tied the United States' hands and paralyzed any action on their part. It was impossible to determine the amount of land not needed to fulfill the restrictive clauses of North Carolina i.e. to fulfill the army's quota and complete into grants those warrants and entries already made but on which grants had not been issued. Also, North Carolina continued to issue warrants to her soldiers, even advertising in the newspaper long lists of those who were eligible for such land. North Carolina was legally obligated to fulfill her promises to her soldiers and persons who had previously purchased warrants. The United States, accepting the cession deed containing these restrictive clauses, was legally obligated to honor them. The President and Congress made an attempt to establish what lands might not be needed for North Carolina's stipulations but were able only to determine what lands had already been granted and were not able to determine if any lands would be left.

The State of Franklin, illegally formed in 1784, made grants, which were declared good and valid, but their records are not extant. It was, however, during the State of Franklin's existence when settlers moved South of the French Broad and Holston River, and those pre-emption rights were protected by Tennessee's first constitution.<sup>5</sup>

In 1796, Tennessee became a state. The land in West Tennessee still had not been acquired from the Chickasaw Indians and still lay covered with dormant warrants, entries and grants. There was never any question of who owned the land. The question was how much would be needed to fulfill North Carolina's obligationsprotected by the restrictions she had placed in the cession deed. It should also be remembered that the people of Tennessee and North Carolina, at that time, were one and the same.6 North Carolina, Tennessee and the United States, working together, finally solved the stalemate by agreeing to a compact in 1806, which allowed Tennessee to complete into grants, those entries and warrants begun by North Carolina.7 It was 1823 before it was determined that all of North Carolina's obligations had been completed north and east of the Congressional Reservation Line, and the bits and pieces left in between the patchwork grants could be sold. Completion of those entries and warrants in West Tennessee had to wait until the United States signed the treaty with the Chickasaw Indians in 1818. Then, the same process was used in West Tennessee to determine the bits and pieces left after North Carolina's obligations had been fulfilled there and not until 1841 could they be sold.8

In 1803, Stewart County was formed from the western portion of Montgomery County with its western boundary extending to the Mississippi.<sup>9</sup> After the Chickasaw Treaty in 1818,<sup>10</sup> these lands were now eligible for taxation. The law had provided for double taxation on those lands on which taxes had not been paid by 1820, and it was the Sheriff's job to make the collection.

As population and settlements increased, western frontier counties were formed until eventually the land on the Mississippi and its tributaries fell within the county in which it is located today.

STEWART COUNTY, TENNESSEE'S "OMITTED TO BE RETURNED" TAXES FOR 1819

Transcribed by Dorothy Williams Potter

It should be noted that the land described here encompasses a larger area than the present day Stewart County, and includes Indian lands in the area that later became Dyer, Obion, Lake, and other counties along the Mississippi River. For a complete discussion, see the accompanying article by Irene Griffey.

This fragile, two-page document was John C. McLemore's personal copy of "Supplement to the Courier, Murfreesborough, T. June 30, 1820." It was preserved and microfilmed as the first item on the Microfilm roll identified "1820-1904, "Murfreesboro Courier and Other Early Papers," located in the Tennessee State Library and Archives.

John Christmas McLemore was at one time the State Surveyor. The West Tennnessee towns of Christmasville and McLemoresville were named for him.

All data has been included here except a statement following each entry that states: "Clerk, sheriff, and printers fees $3.90." - DWP

A word of praise for NGS Conference "Volunteers"

The success of the 1996 NGS Conference in the States not only reflects the level of professionalism among our members but reaffirms our heritage as "The Volunteer State." It is being touted as the best and will serve as a model for future meetings. As computer lab manager, I wish to express my thanks to all the volunteers who worked so hard to make this conference the "best" one of all! We could not have done it without them. It was truly a "Volunteer" effort on the part of everyone involved. Elliott Pood and Robert Spires saw to it that the software was loaded in all the computers in the labs and learning center. We did not experience any major software problems or equipment failures for the computer lectures, or lab sessions. This would not have been possible without their technical assistance and support. Equally important was the tremendous support of the many volunteers who helped us monitor the labs, and provided assistance to computer learning center visitors. Bobby Ezell coordinated this effort and deserves credit for a job well done.

A Bicentennial Event

The recent dedication of the Mall to celebrate 200 years of Tennessee Statehood reminds us not only of our heritage but provides us an opportunity to speculate about the future. Time capsules were prepared by each county reflecting the times as Address news, comments, questions: Computer Editor, MTGS, PO Box 190625, Nashville, TN 37219-0625 we know them today. As genealogists, we are constantly examining records from the past, looking for clues and information about our ancestors. But where and what will our children and grandchildren be looking for or be using as they start their genealogy research? Will they continue to use microfilm, books, maps, visit libraries, cemeteries, courthouses, and print archives or will they access the National Archives and other sources via some type of electronic device? Some trends are evident, easy to discern and are predictable. Computer technology, the Internet, telecommunications and television are merging. We routinely use a computer and modem to access The Nashville Public Library, The Tennessee State Library Archives, The Library of Congress, Colleges and Universities, Genealogical Societies and numerous other sources locally, throughout the U.S. and around the world. This trend will continue and will have a profound effect on genealogy as we know it today.

Aging Baby Boomers

Neal Templin writing in The Wall Street Journal, said aging baby boomers are becoming more interested in genealogy and are using the personal computer to find their pasts. Templin mentions the use of compact disks, on-line services, and "fancy software programs to create family trees replete with photos, video clips and sound tracks." According to Templin, Family Tree Maker is the top-selling genealogy software. He indicated Banner Blue, a subsidiary of Broderbund Software, Inc., expects to sell 400,000 copies of Family Tree Maker in 1996. 250,000 copies were sold last year.

Thus we might surmise more than one million copies of some type of genealogy software is in use today. This total is probably low considering the number of copies of PAF being used at Family History Centers and copies of other programs sold during the past several years. As noted earlier, the baby-boom generation is fast approaching a time in their life when people start asking questions about their family history and preserving it for future generations. High-tech genealogists will become more common as these babyboomers turn 50 in the next few years. Howard Nurse, president of COMMSOFT, is quoted as saying, "Go back the last 20 or 30 years and see what boomers have done to the stock market and the real-estate market." "Now they're doing amazing things to the genealogy market." Recognition of this trend is critical not only to genealogy software developers but for all of us as we strive to "educate" this new generation of aspiring genealogists. Use of a computer and Internet access can provide us with an arsenal of new tools and ready access to a vast array of worldwide resources not previously available. But knowing the difference between quantity and quality of data is not always apparent to the novice. Consequently we must strive to balance opportunity with responsibility. Otherwise our research efforts will be inundated with a tidal wave of worthless data.

Computer Software and the Genealogy Market

Several of the scheduled computer lab sessions for DOS based genealogy software programs were canceled due to lack of interest. The exception was ROOTS IV. An extra session was added in addition to the two sessions originally scheduled. Interest in the remaining scheduled DOS programs including several PAF sessions was minimal. The only DOS program that generated any interest was the GEDCOM Do's & Don'ts for beginners by Barbara Renick. It was originally intended to be for PAF users only but half the attendees were using other software. Barbara had an assistant who worked with them while she attended to the PAF users.

Many computer users still use PAF or other DOS programs, but many others are now using Windows and want to transfer their data files to a new program such as Family Tree Maker. The need for some type of data exchange program continues to plague software developers and continues to be a major concern for most of us using computers for genealogy research. Problems arise when data is imported or exported from one program to another. Medical data, footnotes, citations, confidential information or research notes and hints can be especially troublesome. This becomes evident when exchanging data with another researcher who is using a different software program or when upgrading from a DOS to a Windows program. New problems are emerging with the increasing use of pictures, maps, sound and video frames embedded in data files and formatting styles compatible with word processors and the Windows operating system. A new GEDCOM specification has been proposed but has not been adopted by software developers. This has been a hot item on the Internet during the past several months and will not diminish until some viable alternative to GEDCOM is developed. As Win 95 gains dominance in the marketplace, we can expect developers to incorporate file structures and transfer utilities into their genealogy programs that are compatible with Windows and hopefully we will be able to avoid this problem. This is indicative of a trend toward Windows based programs by developers. Indications are an up-grade for PAF will be announced during the coming year and we can expect other developers to do the same as they try to make the change to a Windows operating system.

Both sessions of Family Tree

Maker were filled and a third session would have been filled if an instructor had been available. Numerous visitors to the Computer Learning Center showed more interest in Family Tree Maker than any other program. Both sessions of Visual ROOTS were also filled and an extra session was scheduled to replace one of the canceled DOS programs.. John Steed conducted two computer lab sessions on Brother's Keeper for Windows but attendance was lower than expected. This is a shareware program and the Windows version had not been available soon enough for people to know about it before the conference.

Several computer lectures focused on the use of computers for genealogy research. Carla and Dennis Ridenour compared features of several popular Windows genealogy programs while John Whitaker discussed ways to do computer-aided research. James Hoy followed with a session on various types of hardware and the kinds of software required to do genealogy research.

COMMSOFT introduced Family Gathering, formerly Visual ROOTS, during the recent NGS Conference. This new program sells for $49.95, will run on Win 3.1 and Win 95, and uses the same data files as ROOTS III and IV. Since ROOTS III and IV are both DOS programs, users can up-grade to Family Gathering without fear of losing any data. Family Gathering will be marketed by PAL-LADIUM Interactive and will be competitive with Family Tree Maker. COMMSOFT also indicated a windows upgrade for ROOTS IV is coming later this year.

Windows update & the Internet

The lack of interest in DOS based programs reflects a growing trend among computer users nationwide, however the upgrade to Windows 95 has been slower than anticipated. We had Win 95 installed on one of the computers in the learning center for the NGS Conference and had a session on how to upgrade to Win 95.

The session was well attended and many attendees indicated they were using Win 95 or planned to upgrade. but the majority were still using Windows 3.1. Although Microsoft announced Windows 95 almost a year ago, only about one in four computer owners have made the change. Indications are that Microsoft will release a series of minor upgrades and add-ons for Win 95 later this year but a major update is not scheduled until next year or later. However, a code update set for release this summer, will include a new release of Internet Explorer. Not yet named. this upgrade will allow you to browse your own computer, or the Internet using the same screens and the same menu commands.

Interest in the Internet was evident during the NGS Conference. Several computer lectures and lab sessions focused on ways to access the Internet or discussed ways to make better use of this new technology. Mike St. Clair discussed electronic "trails" now developing and how genealogists can travel them to get more information. Brian Mavrogeorge used an online provider to visit several Internet sites during his computer lecture on Thursday. He then followed up Friday morning by showing how to create your own home page on the Internet and making your genealogical data available. George Archer, Contributing Editor. NGS/CIG Digest, prepared a handout for his lecture "How To Get On Internet and Where To Go After You Get On." He discussed online services, Internet access providers, bulletin boards, some of the best resources on the Internet, and resources in Tennessee. If you would like a copy, write me and enclose a SASE or plan to attend the next MTGS meeting July 20th. It will be a presentation, "Genealogy on the Internet," with a question-and-answer session. Normally the computer interest group meets after the conclusion of the regular meeting, however, we will combine the two for this presentation. See you there.

Contributed by Sue Edwards

This Supreme Court Case is 78 pages long and identifies parts of three generations of the families of James H. Sharp and Thomas McDougal. Depositions were taken in Louisa County, Virginia, and in Obion, Gibson, and Montgomery Counties, Tennessee. Numerous marriage and death dates are given as well as economic and personal information about the slaveholder and the slave families.

The original case was heard in Chancery Court, Clarksville, Montgomery County, Tennessee, beginning in 1852, and the Supreme Court case folder includes additional records from the Chancery Court trial in Montgomery County. The original defendants were Arthur Rose and wife Charity, Elizabeth Beasley, George Parker and wife Margaret, John Gold and wife Clarissa, Samuel Brockman, Mary Jane Brockman, James B. Turnley and wife Agnes [Brockman], and Tandy Brockman as guardian of Ann Brockman. In the course of the trial in Montgomery County, it is noted that Mary Jane Brockman married Reuben A. Butterworth in 1850, making him a defendant. And in 1852 Ann Brockman's marriage to Charles J. Rives made him a defendant. These additional defendants are not mentioned in the Supreme Court transcript.

HUMBLYCOMPLAINING your orators A. S. Underwood and Sarah J. Underwood his wife, formerly Sarah J. Nuckolls, William H. Baldridge & Lucy E. H. Baldrige his wife formerly Lucy E. H. Nuckolls, James W. Nuckolls, David B. Nuckolls, and John B. Sloan & Elizabeth Ellen Sloan the only children of H. S. Sloan & Mary Ann Sloan formerly Mary Ann Nuckolls, infants under the age of twenty-one years, who sue by their next friends A. S. Underwood & William H. Baldridge being all the heirs & representatives of Wm. & Maria C. Nuckolls...the said Maria C. Nuckolls was the daughter of James H. Sharp who died in the county of Hanover in the state of Virginia after having made his last will & testament which is here referred to marked "A" and is prayed to be taken as part of this Bill, which said will was on the 25th day of July 1830 duly proven by the subscribing witnesses thereto & admitted to record in the County of Hanover. Your orators would state that by the provisions of the will...[James H. Sharp] bequeathed to the said Maria C. Nuckolls and her husband Wm. C. Nuckolls the loan of one negro woman by name Rachael during their natural lives and at their death to be equally divided between her bodily heirs...."

The slave Rachael was given to Maria Sharp when she married. When William and Maria Nuckolls removed some years later to Gibson County, Tennesse, they brought Rachael, her husband Abram, and several children with them. More children were born to Rachael and Abram in Tennessee. Maria Nuckolls died shortly after the move. William Nuckolls sold the slave family to William W. Lea who in turn sold them to Thomas McDougal. McDougal resided in Montgomery County, but kept the slaves on his farm in Obion County.

Thomas McDougal died 1850 in Montgomery County (TSLA Mf #311 Will Book L:631) and bequeathed "the remainder of my property [which included the slaves] to my daughters Elizabeth Beasley, Charity Rose, Clarissa Gould, Margarett Parker and my four grandchildren the children of Tandy Brockman by my Decd Daughter Jane Brockman..."

William Nuckolls died in 1852 and his heirs sued for the return of the slaves under the provision of James H. Sharp's will that loaned rather than gave the slaves to William and Maria C. Nuckolls. (Proven in Hanover Co. VA 25 Aug. 1830; registered Dyer Co. TN Will Book E:111-112 and Obion Co. TN Will Book E:484-487).

The following is a name index of the Supreme Court record which was prepared for convenience in extracting names. Spellings for the same persons vary throughout the transcript. Item seventh of the will provides: "All the property heretofore devised to my daughters, Sallie, Polly, Matilda and Peggy I hereby vest in my friend Benjamin Decherd as Trustee, and desire that any money which may be received under said devise from the sale of land, stock, etc. be put out to interest or vested in property for their benefit at the discretion of said Trustee, but the said property is not to be consumed in the maintainance of my said children, nor are they to anticipate the same by contacting debts upon the faith thereof, but the profits of said property above is to be used by them."

A meeting between NGS officials and Halbert's was held here in Nashville during the conference. An account of the background of this conflict appears in the current (May/June) issue of the Genealogical Helper. It was interesting to me to see surnames' background sold at some of the historic houses in England recently.

Both the old and new MTGS Boards are meeting jointly as this issue goes to press. Those who have served will pass along their insights and perspectives to the new board members. We hope to get a better handle on the day-to-day operations of MTGS and to find ways to improve it. If you have suggestions, I would be pleased to hear from you. I may be reached at The Nashville Room, Public Library of Nashville and Davidson County, 225 Polk Avenue, Nashville, TN 37203.

Our fall workshop has been scheduled for November 16 with George K. Schweitzer of Knoxville. Even if you have heard him before, you will be in for a treat.

MTGS PROGRAM NOTES

July Program

"Genealogy on the Internet: The Basics"

1:00, Saturday, July 20, 1996

Wonder what all the Internet hoopla is about? Ron Lee, designer of the historical/genealogical pages of the Tennessee State Library & Archives Internet site, will discuss the basics of genealogy on the Internet. Learn how to connect to the Internet, where to find good genealogical information, how to join a genealogy interest list, and see what the TSLA has made available on-line. Computers will be available for Internet searching by MTGS members from 2-3 P.M.

September Program

"MTGS Open House at the Metro Archives" 1:00, Saturday, September 21, 1996

The doors of the Nashville Metro Archives will be thrown open to MTGS members for an exclusive behind-the scenes look. Members will have the opportunity to look at original Davidson County records, see how computer scanning of documents is one, and discuss the indexing projects going on at the Archives. Come directly to 1113 Elm Hill Pike – do not go to the usual meeting site.
