FROM THE EDITOR . . .

In the Middle Tennessee Genealogical Society Newsletter, Volume II, Number 2, there was published a questionnaire for all members of the Society to use in registering their interests and suggestions for Journal and Newsletter content. Based on all forms returned by 20 October 1997, we can report the following.

Of the continuing articles being presently published, the "Middle Tennessee Connections" was the most popular. Family genealogies was second, with Tennessee State Library & Archives holdings being close behind. Following, in order, were: Bible records, land records, "Queries," "How-to" articles, and cemetery records. Next came the tax records, book reviews, County histories, "Computer News," the Supreme Court cases, and Mero District Minutes, etc. The "Of Interest" material had the least amount of interest in the more than twenty categories listed in the questionnaires.

The comments and suggestions were interesting. Some of the suggestions included orphan records, maps, birth records of 1850-53, historic sites with biographical sketches that might be associated with the site, obituaries, new acquisitions at TSLA, photos of historic areas, census records, "any White County data," and "any Jackson County material." So one sees there is quite a diversification of interests.

There were few comments per se: "All our work is appreciated." (Davenport, IA); "All of the above subjects are interesting to me. I look forward to each issue of the Journal and Newsletter." (Knoxville, TN); "You do a terrific job!" (Nashville, TN); and "You all are doing a fine job." (Hillsboro, TX). Apparently we are doing something right.

Thanks to everyone who took the time to return the questionnaire. This gives your Society the feedback that is necessary to improve its publications.

THE MIDDLE TENNESSEE GRAVE HOUSE

By Frederick Smoot

enealogy will lead the ardent researcher down many roads. Obscure burial grounds and lesser known burial customs can be the outcome for following those roads. One reward could be the discovery of the ruins of a grave house, sometimes called a grave shelter. They can be found throughout the South, especially in hill country.

The grave house is different from the mausoleum. A grave house is built over an "in earth" interment, while the in the mausoleum the bodies are above ground, often being placed in a alcove in the walls. As we might expect, our early Tennessee grave houses may contain more than one body. The style of the grave house could vary. Logs, milled lumber, field stones, ashlars, and even brick are the potential materials of the grave house.

Some grave houses were built without doors. Many abandoned early grave houses would have totally disappeared as the wood parts rotted away. Those grave houses that had a stone perimeter foundation may today appear simply as old stone walls—and if no headstones remain—may be passed over as not being a cemetery—looking too much like the foundation of a small building.

grave house1

A shelter erected over or near a grave.

[2] Many of them [=mountain cemeteries] have 'grave houses' -rude log and clapboard shelters-that many mountaineers customarily erect over and around the graves of their relatives.

[3] In the earlier days when a body of a loved one . . . was consigned to the earthly bosom of the hill country, a grave house was erected over the mound. These little houses protected the grave from both the elements and that fiendish ghoul, the grave robber.

Anderson Cemetery

This cemetery is situated in Warren County on the south side of Old Shelbyville Road, east of Old Well Road. It is both south and west of the Barren Fork River, south of the Garner Branch. The roof is missing, no headstones are visible. The neighborhood tradition names this little graveyard, the "Anderson Cemetery."

My first experience with a grave house was when William Butler Smith, a lifetime Warren County Tennessee, citizen, showed this "grave house" cemetery to me. It was totally full of brush and we were not able to see inside. Cut stone walls enclosed the cemetery, many stones had been pushed in by cattle. The exterior measurements of the walls are 22 feet by 12 feet, with a height of 3 feet. Butler was of the opinion that the native stone walls were "slave built." He said, "White men don't work that hard."

Butler told the story that as a boy (in the 1930s) he had hunted rabbits on that hillside and once, while hunting he had looked under the rotting and fallen roof of the cemetery and he saw a rabbit among the graves. He declined to shoot the rabbit saying that he did not want to crawl under the roof because of the possibility of snakes. Butler said grave stones numbered five or six. The gravestones were rough cut native stone, not the fancy marble gravestones that we see in latter times. Butler stated the grave house had no wood walls above the stone foundation, and never had. The roof was built directly atop the stones.

There is no documented date for this cemetery. For good cause, I date this cemetery as the 1830s.

Thomas Brixey Grave House

Dating to 1841, another grave house in a Middle Tennessee cemetery is situated in Coffee County. The roof is missing. It can be identified using the Covenant between the heirs of Thomas Brixey, located in Coffee County, Tennessee, Deed Book B, pp. 338-9:

We the Undersigned do hereby Covenant and agree that John O. Brixey and Samuel F. Brixey administrators of Thos. Brixey deceased employ some person or persons to inclose the Graves of Thos Brixey Susanna Brixey his wife and Parthenia Brixey with a wall of Rock three feet high and plate rafters and shingles above the wall also the gables ends weatherboarded up and we do also Covenant and agree that the expense be charged to us jointly and that each and every one pay an equal part all the above work to be done in good work-man style. Witness our hand and seal this 2nd day of October 1841.

Grave house styles

any variations of grave house styles can be seen in an excellent article, by Donald B. Ball that covered the study of some grave houses in Cannon, Coffee, and Rutherford Counties. The article is titled "Observations on the Form and Function of Middle Tennessee Gravehouses."2 In the article are photographs of a variety of styles, from little wooden structures that look like garden gazebos to tiny finished stone structures that appear to be miniature mausoleums. Most pleasing to me was the inclusion of a small drawing of a grave house with short ashlar walls, no wood walls, but a roof directly atop the ashlars. This little drawing showed me that my own drawings were accurate.

Those grave houses that had wood walls or picket fences could be painted. I have read of a grave house in East Tennessee (now razed) that had wood walls that were painted black.

The question of why were so many grave houses were placed in hillside locations, might be best answered by a friend of mine from West Virginia hill country. He has told me that where he was born, there was a lot of hills and hillside grave houses, but only very narrow "hollars." He said that hillside burials are done for the same reasons that fence row burials were done: the bodies are out of the way, they won't be plowed up, and you do not waste precious farm land. He notes that hillside cemetery locations are preferred, especially if the graves can be faced eastward. That way, the interred souls may the first to see the next coming of the Messiah.

THE BRIXEY FAMILY OF COFFEE COUNTY, TENNESSEE

By Betty Moore Majors, former Coffee County Historian

THOMAS BRIXEY was born in Franklin County, Georgia, about 1780, son of John and Rachel (Mackey) Brixey. His father was born in Ireland, and, according to family recollections, served in the Revolutionary War for which he was given land in NC. He died there before 1787. Rachel married a second time in Burke County, NC to Barnaby Strickland in 1787. John and Rachel had at least three children: John, Junr., Janet, and Thomas Brixey as seen below.

JOHN BRIXEY, JUNIOR, born 1781, married Elizabeth Robertson, daughter of William and Jane Robertson. This family moved first to the Coffee County, TN area, then to Peace County MO and finally to Washington County, Arkansas. John died in 1859 and is buried in Mt. Comfort Cemetery in Fayetteville, Arkansas. He and Elizabeth had eleven children.

JANET BRIXEY, born ca 1788, Franklin County GA, married Josiah Powell and removed to McComb, Mississippi. Josiah Powell served in the War of 1812. Janet and Josiah had at least 11 children.

THOMAS BRIXEY, the progenitor of the family set forth in this article, married Susannah Clark on 8 Jan 1805 in Abbeville, SC by Moses Waddel, D.D. She was the daughter of William and Mary (___) Clark of Abbeville, SC and Franklin County, GA. William Clark served in the American Revolution as a lieutenant in Col Bratton's Regiment. His will is recorded in Will Book 1, page 39, Abbeville County, SC.

Thomas Brixey and his wife Susannah and their daughter Parthenia are buried in a house grave in a private cemetery between Manchester and Hillsboro. Before his death in 1840, Thomas set forth the dimensions and construction details for this unusual grave covering. [See previous article.—Ed.]

Thomas and Susannah (Clark) Brixey had moved to the Coffee County area about 1811 where early Franklin County, TN deeds show him owning land on the headwaters of Bradley Creek. #### BOOK REVIEWS

by Shirley Wilson, CG

Davidson County, Tennessee Naturalization Records 1803-1906 by Mary Sue Smith. Hardback 5 1/2 x 8 3/4, 346 pp., copyright 1997, index. $35 from Elder Book Store in Nashville, and Byron Sistler & Associates, Box 120934, Nashville, TN 37212. TN residents add 8 1/4 % sales tax plus $3.50 postage.

This book of abstracts contains all information given in the naturalization records from surviving original loose papers, docket books and all courts in Davidson County, Tennessee. The name, birthdate, country, state or city of birth, port of entry, and date of entry are the basics that are included.

These are exceptional documents that frequently include such additional information as the age when the person immigrated, the migration trail across the United States, how long the individual remained in a given area before moving again and even some military records in the late 1860s.

Smith has done an excellent job in locating and abstracting these relatively obscure but extremely valuable records. An every name index makes it easy for the reader to locate the desired record. Those with ancestors in Middle Tennessee will definitely want to have this book.

Mecklenburg County, North Carolina Minutes of the Court of Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions Volume II:1801-1820 by Herman W. Ferguson. Softback 8 1/2 x 11, 342 pp., copyright 1997, index, map. $30 postpaid from Herman W. Ferguson, 600 Chad Drive, Rocky Mount, NC 27803-1512. NC residents add 6 % sales tax.

Mecklenburg County was formed in 1762 from Anson, the first county to be cut off from Anson to the west. The extant minutes begin in July of 1774 and this publication is the third in a series of Mecklenburg court minutes and the second authored by Ferguson.

Included are details on such activities as estate settlements, persons assigned to jury duty or to work on the roads, lawsuits, wills submitted for probate, administrators appointed to handle intestate estates, the recording of deeds, issues relating to apprentices and orphans under the care of the court.

An extremely helpful tool is a map of Mecklenburg County circa 1790 located between pages 22 and 23 that identifies creeks, rivers, an occasional church and the boundaries of some adjacent counties. All this, combined with a top notch index, makes this another well prepared and valuable book for the genealogist.

Abstracts of Deed Books 15-19 of Rowan County, North Carolina 1797-1807 by James W. Kluttz. Hardback 8 1/2 x 11, 272 pp., copyright 1997, index, map. $35 plus $4 shipping from author at 106 Chancellors Ridge Ct., Cary, NC 27513-2749.

Deeds are exceptionally important to genealogy and this book is a fine example of how to properly abstract and publish them. All pertinent information is included with each abstract as well as the date of the deed and the date it was proven in court.

The index is excellent. It includes all names and places found within each deed and takes the reader to the deed number rather than the page, making it very easy to find the desired information. There is a separate map index to a Rowan County map that identifies the creeks. Often the deeds identify the watercourse, so the reader can not only find the land of his ancestor but place it on a map as well.

The deeds include those in the present counties of Davie and Davidson. This is also true of the author's previously published book of deed abstracts covering the time period 1786-1797 (which by the way is still available and at the same price).

These books are definitely a worthwhile investment for those with roots in North Carolina's Rowan County.

Ellis County, Texas Patents and Deed Abstracts 1845-1856 by Joyce Martin Murray. Softback 8 1/2 x 11, 136 pp., copyright 1997, index. $30 plus $3.50 postage from Joyce Martin Murray, 2921 Daniel, Dallas, TX 75205. Texas residents add 8.25% tax.

Included in this publication are two different deed books labeled A and a third labeled B for the years 1845 to 1856. Although county record books for states to the west of Tennessee aren't frequently reviewed in this column, an exception was made in this instance because of a number of references to Tennessee found in the index.

Murray has done similar books for Tennessee and Kentucky and has the process down to a science at this point. The every name and place index also includes a listing of slaves found within the deeds. This book should be very helpful to those with connections in Ellis County, Texas.

The Story of an Early Land Grant

By Virginia Walton

Mr. Ernest Biles Walton, my father-in-law, loved his family and he loved the land along Drake Branch Road where they lived. This land in Davidson County, Tennessee, just north of the Cumberland River, had been given to Benjamin Drake in 1787 as a grant from North Carolina for services rendered that colony. Drake had come from the Watauga Settlement to French Lick with the James Robertson party and had arrived here in 1779. He was Mr. Walton's great, great, grandfather.

At this time the North Carolina colony extended from the Atlantic seacoast even to the Mississippi River. Sections of what is now upper middle Tennessee north of the Cumberland River was designated as the Cumberland District (North Carolina Military Reservation). This was set aside for tracts to be granted to ex-soldiers of the North Carolina Continental Line in the Revolutionary War.

This land was pristine wilderness and had to be surveyed into tracts. Besides the surveyors, chain-carriers were needed and markers and also guards for securing their protection. Tracts of this land were given to the men who accomplished this. These were the only "free" lands granted in Tennessee with the exception of the pre-emption rights given to the Cumberland settlers who were recognized for securing the land during the last years of the Revolution. We learn from the wording on the 320 acre grant given to Benjamin Drake that he was one of the guards who protected the surveyors of the Military Reservation. The original grant #58 written in October of 1787 is still in the possession of the family.

This property is located seven miles from Nashville on the Clarksville Highway and one mile to the north. A ferry at the foot of Hyde's Ferry Turnpike which is about 300 feet down river from the present bridge furnished their means of transportation to the markets and court house in Nashville. It was customary for a ferryman to steer a boat from one shore to the other by pulling hand over fist on a rope stretched across the river. Another ferry was upstream a mile or so at the Buena Vista Turnpike.

A two-story house was built on one of the beautiful hills on the Drake acreage. It was built of walnut logs with wide poplar flooring boards. In the attic you could see where the joists were joined with wooden pegs. The timber and the lime for the hand-made chimney bricks came from the site. During later renovation the house was weatherboarded. Different generations of the family have made this their home, and the property had come to Mr. Walton through his paternal line of ancestors and had never been out of the family until 1968. At his death and when the family had scattered, the home and acreage was sold to a builder-developer for a subdivision. The house was demolished in 1973.

TENNESSEE COUNTY, NORTH CAROLINA, DEED ABSTRACTS, 1789–1797 Early Records of Robertson, Montgomery, Stewart, Dickson, Houston, Hickman, Humphreys and Cheatham Counties

Transcribed by Yolanda G. Reid, Robertson County Historian

TENNESSEE COUNTY was formed in the fall of 1788 and was the third county created in what we now know as Middle Tennessee. The county seat of Tennessee County was Clarksville. The land within this county encompassed what is today known as Montgomery, Robertson, Dickson, Houston, Stewart, parts of Hickman, Humphreys and Cheatham Counties, Tennessee.

The importance of this material lies not only in their early date, but also that many of these are grants for Revolutionary War service.

The Tennessee County deed records are found on microfilm as Montgomery County, Tennessee, Deed Book A. Page numbers given here are the actual page numbers found in Deed Book A and on the microfilm. Surname spelling is given as originally written, but the word "registered" is indicated as "reg." in this series. —YGR

In Research . . . As in Life

By Jane Hembree Crowley

THERE ARE MANY DAYS WHEN MY genealogical research seems like a twisted vine withering on a dilapidated trellis, parched and thirsty with no rain clouds in sight. On those days, I invariably ask myself why I am doing it. There are occasionally days when the vine blooms in a glorious flower and yields the sweet scent of a life lesson, mine for the taking. On those days, I'm rewarded with the answer.

Such was the case on a recent field research trip, a day when I noted with some surprise how closely our research mimics life itself. After driving into a dead end, stopping to ask for directions, starting over, wanting to give up and just go home yet bolstered by the encouragement of a friend, and not being properly prepared for a hike through a muddy field, it occurred to me that we often experience similar situations in our research. Sometimes, it is not we but others who are unprepared for the truth our research reveals about dear departed ancestors.

The goal of this particular trip was to discover a small family cemetery, and with some difficulty, dead ends, discouragement and starting over, perseverance finally paid off. How different the worn gravestones looked from those of today, a reminder of the passage of time and the changes it brings. The inscriptions, though clearly visible and readable, were beginning to fade even though they were all less than 100 years old. Is nothing, not even stone, permanent I wondered?

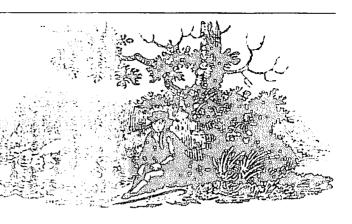

The rather lighthearted research goals of the day began to be overshadowed, for me at least, by a more serious life lesson. The trip was making me acutely aware of the passage of time, not just for those for whom we search in libraries, courthouses and graveyards, but in my life as well. I was pondering over this awareness of being in the middle between the past and the future, when I noticed on the side of one the gravestones the following fading, inscribed verse:

Remember friends as you pass by, as you are now, so once was I.

As I am now, so must you be.

Prepare for death, and follow me.

I began to realize that perhaps one of the reasons for my research may be my own way of preparing for my death, trying to set the record down straight and true while I can, trying to uncover all I can about my past, in case some descendant somewhere down time's future corridor wants to know about me, about what characteristics I may have passed on to them. Perhaps I am trying to discover what of me is like those who have gone before. Perhaps I am trying to discover who my ancestors were as people and not just as parents and grandparents. Yet as I stood in the small quiet cemetery, the haunting question came to me, "What more do I need to do to prepare for death? Will I have the strength and courage necessary to make the time to do it? Will I learn this life lesson in time?"

As I drove home, I thought about a simple field research trip that became a life lesson I had learned today— our history once written is permanent. It is not changed by the passage of time that erodes the inscriptions on our aging granite grave stones. My place in the continuing chain of family remains one of the few things that seems unchanged throughout the changing scenario of time. Even through divorce, death, remarriage, sad times and glad times, the fabric of family connection blankets us, is a part of who we are and who we will be, who our ancestors were and who our descendants will be. We are not the beginning or the middle or the end, but part of a hopefully unending chain that will continue to provide comfort and structure in a changing world.

It's no wonder that in our research we gladly stomp through muddy fields, willingly back up and start again when faced with dead ends in our research, peer over musty records in court house basements, and rejoice when finding the last visible and touchable link to a family member we were not privileged to know in person.

We are doing important work in our research. We are helping to preserve the continuing chain of family throughout the passage of time. As we make unsuspected discoveries, occasionally venture down the wrong road, and receive help from those we meet along the way. . . we keep on seeking. In research. . . as in life.

The Tennessee Confederate Soldiers Home

by Robert A. Greene, Tennessee State Library & Archives

N 1888, A CONFEDERATE VETERANS organization called Cheatham's Bivouac proposed a retirement home for soldiers. The institution was to provide housing and care for the disabled and poor Confederate veterans from Tennessee. The bivouac suggested the state owned Hermitage Plantation, former home of Andrew Jackson, as a location for the facility. They appointed a committee and petitioned the State Legislature for a bill.

In 1889, the General Assembly passed legislation that established the Tennessee Confederate Soldiers Home. The act provided the home with 475 acres of the Hermitage's lands while the 25 acres immediately surrounding the mansion became a memorial. To administer the institution and review applications, the state established a Board of Trustees. The act also provided the board with a $10,000 appropriation for building and operation costs.

The Soldiers Home officially opened in 1890. The board used the appropriation money to fence the grounds and build three cottages. The excess land was farmed and used to help sustain the facility. In 1892, the cottage system was abandoned and a dormitory was built. This building had the capacity to house 125 veterans while providing better care at a cheaper cost. As the veterans aged and required more care, the state legislature appropriated more funds for the construction of a hospital. The grounds also included a chapel and a cemetery.

Much of the funding for the Soldiers Home was provided by the Tennessee Division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The UDC raised money through concerts and luncheons to supplement the building appropriations. They hired matrons, ministers, and nurses to staff the facility. These charitable women also provided the veterans with holiday dinners and helped fund their travel expenses to Confederate reunions.

In 1933, the Soldiers Home moved from the Hermitage to the Tennessee Industrial School. The remaining veterans resided there in a cottage until 1937 when they moved into a private residence. This twelve room home on Nolensville Road in south Nashville was the last location of the Soldiers Home. In 1941, following the death of the last veteran, the Tennessee Confederate Soldiers Home closed.

Prior to admission into the Tennessee Confederate Soldiers Home, Confederate veterans were required to submit applications to a review board. These applications contain questions designed to determine the applicants need and legitimacy for state funded care. These records are available at the Tennessee State Library and Archives, as part of Record Group 2, and have been microfilmed.

A recently-produced index lists the applications for the Tennessee Confederate Soldiers Home. The entries for residents of Middle Tennessee counties have been abstracted for this article. The index is alphabetical by surname, and when available, the applicant's county of residence, military unit, and date of application are included. Most of the index data is directly from the applications. Some forms, however, are incomplete or illegible, and supplemental sources were used to create the index entry. These supplemental sources include the two volumes of Tennesseans in the Civil War and additional materials contained in the applicant's file such as letters of recommendation and verification. Several dozen incomplete applications did not list a place of residence for the soldier, so some Middle Tennessee residents who applied may not be represented in this article.

Even with the benefit of substantial cross referencing material, errors and inconsistencies within the index may occur. When dealing with hand written data from another time period, there is a chance of mistakes in the translation. Also many applicants did not fill out their own forms, but instead relied on third parties who may have misread, misheard, or miswritten pertinent data. Numerous applications give several military units, but the index lists only one. The criteria for this selection are access and legibility. When viewing the original applications, one should be aware of the possibility of the applicant's service in other units.

The applications contain more material than the index. The forms include questions about the applicant's families and birth dates. There are questions concerning enlistment, wounds, and post war occupation. As mentioned previously, many files also include supplemental letters and documents. This information, however, is not consistent on every application. The amount of data available depends on the memory of the applicant, the attentiveness of the recorder, and which of the two application forms was used.

The applications to the Tennessee Confederate Soldiers Home are a tremendous resource, and it is hoped that this list will promote and facilitate their use.

How To . . .

Make Lye Soap

All fat and grease from the kitchen should be carefully saved, and should be made into soap before accumulating and becoming offensive.

Boil for six hours ten gallons of lye made of green wood ashes. Then add eight or ten pounds of grease, and continue to boil it. If thick or ropy, add more lye till the grease is absorbed. This is ascertained by dropping a spoonful in a glass of water, and if grease remains it will show on the water.

If hard soap is desired, put one quart of salt in half gallon of hot water. Stir till dissolved and pour into the boiling soap. Boil twenty minutes, stirring continually. Remove from the fire, and when cold cut in cakes and dry. A box of concentrated lye may be used instead of salt, as it will obviate the necessity of using more dripped lye to consume the grease.

Roast An Ox Heart

Wash it well and clean all the blood carefully from the pipes; parboil it ten or fifteen minutes in boiling water; drain and put in a stuffing which has been made of bread crumbs, minced suet or butter, thyme or parsley, salt, pepper, and nutmeg.

Put it down to roast while hot, baste it well with butter, and just before serving, stir one tablespoon currant jelly into the gravy.

To roast, allow twenty minutes to every pound.

Make Lemon Pickle

Rasp the lemons a little and nick them at one end; lay them in a dish with very dry salt, let them be near the fire, and covered. They must stand seven or eight days, then put in fresh salt, and remain the same time again; then wash them well, and pour on boiling vinegar, grated nutmeg, mace, and whole pepper. Whenever the salt becomes damp, it must be taken out and dried.

The lemons will not be tender for nearly a year. The time to pickle them is about February.<sup>1</sup>

MINUTES OF THE SUPERIOR COURT of NORTH CAROLINA and MERO DISTRICT

Abstracted and annotated by Dorothy Scott Johnson

For a complete introduction to this material please refer to Issue Number 1 of Volume XI. All legal definitions are taken from Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition and will hereafter be referred to as "Black's." Many abbreviations in this work are not in Black's and appear to be the original clerk's own brand of legal shorthand. Since no log exists explaining the meaning of these abbreviations, it is necessary to use them as they are written.

Unless so stated otherwise, the page numbers given here are the pages of the WPA typed material, not the original page numbers.

Genealogical Note: Court was held in Nashville at the courthouse in all cases. At the time of these minutes the Cumberland River ran on the north edge of Nashville. There were no bridges, so all crossings were done by ferry. Armed with this knowledge, you can determine how far your ancestor lived from the courthouse if he or she was a witness in a case and claimed mileage and/or ferriage. If he claimed ferriage, of course, he lived across the Cumberland River from Nashville. Four ferriages means two trips from his home over the river and back. —DSJ.

John McNairy & Wife vs. Taitt and Edgar

Action: Andrew Jackson and John Overton were mutually chosen by John McNairy and William Taitt to arbitrate and determine two suits now pending in the Superior Court of the District of Mero. They also mutually choose Howel Tatum, Esquire, umpire or third person.

Particulars: One of the said suits is an ejectment instituted for the recovery of half Lot No. 9 in the town of Nashville; the other suit was for missed profit on said lot.

McNairy and wife to recover their legal costs in said ejectment from defendants. "We are also of opinion that the said McNairy & wife are not entitled to anything for" missed profits and that Edgar and Taitt recover their legal costs in that suit against McNairy and wife. Case: Rescuing. [Black's: Act of saving or freeing.]

Particulars: On 15 November 1794 Richard Pearrell [also written Parrel and Perral] was taken into custody by the Sheriff for the Territory by authority of a Writ by the Clerk of the Superior Court of Mero District.

Pearrell was brought into court on 15 November 1794 by the Sheriff and was bound in a recognizance bond in the amount of £259 to be void if he appeared in court to answer the complaint. William Brown became his security.

One Nicholas Coonrod was about to go on a journey out of the Territory into another state and was known to be an acquaintance of Pearrell. It was feared Coonrod would persuade Pearrell to go off with him.

On 7 February about 1795 Pearrell was persuaded by Coonrod to leave with him and they left together. Brown overtook them and took Pearrell into custody. Coonrod, with force and arms, rescued

Pearrell out of the custody of Brown.

WPA p. 202 (Orig. p. 172)

Government vs. Frederick Stump

Case: Grand Jury Indictment for Perjury.

Particulars: At the May term, 1796, the Grand Jury found that Frederick Stump, late of Davidson County, on the second Monday in May, 1795, at the Court House in Nashville, was sworn and did take his corporal oath upon the Holy Gospels of God of the matters and things exhibited against Ennis Hooper of the county and district aforesaid.

Frederick Stump swore that Ennis Hooper did commit an assault and battery upon one Gadi Gibson on 13 January 1795; that Hooper did beat, wound, and ill treat Hooper at the same time "with artificial claws," and the natural nails of his fingers tore the face of Gibson with many scratches and wounds, among other wrongs to Gibson.

In truth and in fact, Ennis Hooper did not commit a battery as aforesaid upon Gadi Gibson; neither did Hooper use artificial claws nor did the natural nails of his fingers cause any wounds or scratches on Gadi Gibson's face. Thus Frederick Stump did wilfully, corruptly and maliciously commit willful and corrupt perjury to the great displeasure of The Almighty and in contempt of the laws to the great damage of Hooper.

Plea: Not guilty

Jury:

Armstrong, William Hope, Adam
Cage, William Hooper, Joseph
Edmondson, William Morrow, William

Frazier, Daniel Gleaves, Michael Hardiman, Thomas

Government vs. John Blackamore and Elisabeth Hutson.

Case: Motion to quash a presentment. [Black's: A presentment is an accusation inititated by the grand jury itself from their own knowledge or observation.]

Action: "Presentment for A. D. on motion of the defendants, Council to quash presentment on the ground it lacked form and substance. Arguements being heard for and against the motion, it is the opinion of the court that the presentment should be quashed."

Government vs. John Commins.

Case: Indicted by Grand Jury for perjury.

Particulars: John Commins, a farmer of Davidson County, on 24 February 1796 in Davidson County, before Judge John McNairy, Esquire, one of the judges of the Superior Court of Law & Equity, exhibited and produced a Bill of Injunction. This Injunction was to stay the proceedings on a judgment obtained against Commins on the 2nd Monday in November 1795 in which Isaac Pearce was defendant. John Commins was then and there sworn in due form of law upon the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God. Commins, not having the fear of God before his eyes but being moved and seduced by the devil, meaning and intending unjustly to aggreive and defraud Isaac Pearce, did knowingly, falsely, wickedly, maliciously, wilfully and corruptly swear falsely against Pearce.

John Cummins swore he furnished hands to work in a boat for 234 days, including his own labor, and paid Fifty Cents per day. He also swore that Smith Hansbery and his negro fellow were also employed for the same purpose.

The Grand Jury found that on 24 February 1796, in Davidson Co., Mero District, Commins committed perjury.

Plea: Not guilty

WPA p. 205 (Orig. p. 174) Saturday, 14 May 1796

Government vs. William Brown

William Brown's forfeited recognizance bond was released by order of the Court for reasons being given by oath. [Note: This means he had a valid reason for not doing what he had been ordered to do so did not have to forfeit his bond.]

William Cotter vs. Elijah Robertson

Action: "I, William Cotter, for value received, do by these presents assign over all my right & interest of the judgment I obtained against Elijah Robertson to John Caffree. Witness my hand & seal this 14th May 1796." /s/ William Cotter.

Government vs. Nicholas Coonrod

Action: On motion of Coonrod to show cause why a new trial should be granted him, arguments being heard for and against the motion from counsel learned in the law and maturity considered by the Court, it is their opinion that a new trial should not be granted; ordered, therefore, that he be fined $10.00 and costs of suit. Fine paid.

Civil War Letters Written by Lt. Col. H. C. Lockhart While a Union Prisoner of War<sup>1</sup>

Contributed by Irene M. Griffey, CG

Fort Warren Boston Harbor May 11, 1862

My Dear Wife:

It has been almost three months since my captivity began[.] I have written to you over and over again by different directions through different Post Offices by and to the care of different persons. I do not know that any of my letters have reached you. I have heard no word from you- I have been patient in waiting all the time, and hopeful that all are well, and that the next mail would bring news from you, but up to this time I have been doomed to disappointment.—Why this is so, is perfectly unaccounted for as there are hundreds of letters from Nashville and two from Clarksville[.] I heard from "Isham" who is at Chicago[;] he had received a letter from "Jo" which left them well, and merely stated that you were all well when the letter was written.

In the letters received from Hornberger and C. C. Smith of Clarksville they state that they heard that my mother died about the first of April. This was the first news I had from them either directly or indirectly. It was sad news to me. It was the saddest day of my life[;] the loss of a mother at any time or under any other circumstances is indeed painful but the loss of my mother While I am far away unable to be there to bid a last farewell and receive a parting kiss, was to me peculiarly saddening. But she was a Christian we, we must[,] meet her. It is strange that none of my brothers and sisters have written to me especially upon the death of my mother. I can <sup>1</sup>Letters written during the Civil War years were collected by W. P. A. workers as they transcribed Tennessee's public records. The letters from all areas of the state were grouped together and presented to Mrs. John Trotwood Moore. These letters are now preserved in The Tennessee State Library and Archives, Nashville, Tennessee, in the W. P. A. Collection. but regard it as neglect and carelessness in them, for there has been letters received from that neighborhood.

When we left Dover we went to Saint Louis, remained there until about the 28th of February, was removed from there to Camp Chase near Columbus Ohio, left there on the 4th of March for this place where we arrived on the 6th. I was quite sick for several days but soon recovered my health which has been and is now very good. I have so often wrote that my letters now are a mere repetition of what I have often wrote to you, but having hopes that you will get this I shall try and give you a sketch of my prison life.

The Fort is on an island containing about 50 acres mostly covered with the buildings of the fort[.] The rooms we live in are elegantly built and well finished inside[.] The room I occupy is the best room I think in the fort[.] It is about 18 x 20 feet[,] has plenty of light and air, a magnificent fire place with marble mantle.— Has a wash and dressing room attached. The room is occupied with me by Col. R. W. Hanson, Capt. Estep, Adje Stoke of Kentucky, Major W. L. Doss of Mississippi and Mr. Robt. Hall of Baltimore six in all. They are all pleasant[,] clever gentlemen[.] We get along pleasantly and well[.] Our beds consist of Iron Army cots— about 8 feet wide and so arranged that we can fold them up in the day time. My cot is supplied with a shuck mattress, on which I have a cotton one, over which I spread the quilts & comforts you made for me with your own hands where I sleep sweetly and often dream of you and my dear little children.

About 50 of us draw our rations together and have it cooked in a long dining room prepared for the purpose. We hire our cooks by the week and all the 50 eat at one common table[.] We send up to Boston and buy butter, milk, eggs, fish and corn meal & flour. We have to pay into the "mess" 2 dollars a week which makes our expenses about 2.50 per week. My same old trunk sits in my room, it is well supplied with clothing most of the articles marked by you— it and its contents are the only memento I have of home.— O how I would like to have your picture— I am vain enough to think that I have the prettiest and best wife of any one who is here[.] Send me one[.] Go[,] if you can(,) to some artist and get one and send it- If you remember you gave one to Jane that you had taken at Parducah[;] fix it up so it will not break & send it.— I am coming home one of these days perhaps some time before long, I expect to find you cheerful[,] happy and as good and pretty a wife as ever. I heard during the battle that my dear little "Lewis" was very sick awhile[.] I was afraid that he had not got well but after Ishams letter that stated you were all well I became hopeful. I want you to kiss Lewis, Mary and my dear little "Lorena" whom I have never seen[.] Teach them all to say "Pa" and don't let my children forget me if you can help it.— You must teach Lewis to read and be smart— Remember me to Mary & her children— Give my love to Mrs. K. She is now my only mother[.] Tell her I love her[.] She must take care of you and my children. Give my love to Tom, Jane and all the children-Tell Tom to do the best he can for me in taking care of you and my children, and that I will yet reward him—Give my love especially to R. B. Mickle, Dr. Fentress, Ike West, Jno. Minor, William Fentress & Mr. Brown and Sam Neasbitt[.] Do not fail to give my love to Mrs. West[,] tell her to pray for me and to write to me.

I send this letter to you in the care of a good old friend of mine[;] he will see that you get it.—will also see that you send me a letter and your picture[.] He will attend to the mailing of them. Please state all about my mothers death and state how many letters you have had from me, if any. If I fail to hear from you by this letter I shall be much discouraged and shall deem it almost impossible to hear from you.

Your affectionate husband H. C. Lockhart Fort Warren, Boston, Mass.

[To:] Mrs. C. E. Lockhart near Sailors Rest, Montgomery Co. Tenn Care Col. Dimick

My old friend B. C. Robertson will please accept my love and I hope will see that Mrs. L. gets this letter as soon as possible. Please read the letter for the reasons. She is at Thomas Walkers near Sailors Rest—let me hear from home.

Fort Warren, June 6, 1862

Dear Kate

I have received the ambrotype picture of yourself, which you wrote to me you would send in a day or two from that time - I shall not attempt to describe my feelings when it came to hand -

I prize it the more highly because it comes to me directly from you, all safe - and as the original when I am at home, exerts a very great influence over my actions, so shall the presence of this picture rule me to the same extent until we meet again, it is not a good picture as you know, but it portrays enough of the original to chain my eyes very often each day. For convenience sake I shall carry it in my pocket - I thank you for your promptness in sending it.

When I wrote to you a day or two ago, I told you there was a prospect that we would not remain here much longer, that I expected to be exchanged or paroled in a few days. Nothing has occurred to cause me to change that opinion. A general system of exchanges has been agreed upon as I learn, and it is more than probable that those who are not exchanged will be paroled[.] In either case I expect to try to visit you.

As this subject is perhaps the most interesting to you as well as myself, I will explain why we have been retained here so long. The Southern Confederacy authorized privateering on the seas. The United States denied the right, and held that persons captured while acting as privateers should be punished as pirates, and succeeded in capturing a good many of them. The Confederate States held the opinion that they should be treated as prisoners of War, and held subject to exchange as other prisoners of War. The United States made issue and held the opinion that they were not prisoners of war, but pirates, therefore, as the punishment for the crime of piracy is death they were held to trial as pirates. To prevent the execution of those men the C. S. held several Federal officers as hostages for them - Fortunately for humanity and civilization the two governments have at last agreed to exchange them. The privateers have been sent from here and other places to Fortress Monroe for exchange -Nearly fifty of them left here last week. This will secure the release of those held as hostages at terms of which I have not learned but suppose they are such as is generally known and acted upon in civilized warfare. If so, all those that are not exchanged will be paroled not to take up arms again until they are exchanged.

I am very hopeful that we will not be retained here long, but the fortunes of war may will it differently - So you need not make any positive calculation upon it.

Accounts from Tennessee are very generally gloomy[.] There seems to be almost a reign of terror there, particularly about Nashville, Pulaski and Lebanon. Papers state that no less that 25 or 30 ladies from Lebanon have been placed in the penitentiary, this I cannot believe, but I have arrived at a point where I am not much surprised at anything that may happen. I am very glad to learn from your letter that there has been no property destroyed by the army in your section of Tennessee. Armies as a general thing have but little respect for private rights. It matters not whether they are of the South or the North, the result as to that, is generally the same, for War at best is barbarism. I hope you will be spared any trouble on that score.

It is remarkably strange to me that none of my friends on Wells Creek write to me. I am almost mad with them. It would seem that they feel but little interest in me. They know where I am for you state that you have been at my brothers since you had heard from me - Well, never mind, everything will be right some day. But as they seem to be so indifferent please do not ask them for any favors as long as there are any strangers in the land to whom I would recommend you go first - I may be very wrong about this, but do not see how I can be. If wrong, I'll make all honorable, I leave you to judge of this and all other matters until I come home.

I am coming home, yes and then I'll not forget the kindness of all who minister to you in this trying period of our history.

I have written a letter to Mr. Rye to know if he has business in Clarksville often enough to assist you in sending your letters to the office and getting mine- I have had a letter today from George Williams, he is well, and is at Johnsons' Island near San Dusky - Pen Dawson was well when I heard from him last. He is at Camp Douglas near Chicago, Illinois. He said he would write to you.

Give my love to Miss "Fannie" first and all my friends, kiss my little children for me, tell Mary and her children howdy for me and remember me kindly to Mrs. King and all - Adieu

> Yours H. C. Lockhart

Fort Warren, June 19, 1862

Dear Kate:

Your letter of the 6th instant came to hand on the 14th[.] I also received one from Mr. Walker on the same day to which I replied by return mail, and gave all of interest I then had and directed him to hand the letter to you. I read your letter with great satisfaction. Your discription of the children was very interest[ing], and the little curl Lewis sent in return for the ring I sent him is highly prized by me. I must send my dear little Mary something. For, although I think Lewis the greatest boy I ever saw, I am equally fond and proud of Mary. From the discription you give of Claiborn - She must be as interesting as one her age could be. Kiss them all for me....

In one of your letters you state that we had lost both of our horses." You are mistaken Charley was taken as I understand. But the horse I had bought and gave my note for $200 when I found that we were to be Sur[rendered] was delivered by me to the man from whom I bought him, he handed me my note and I tore it up. So I saved that amount. But if I had to "Sold him back" before the surrender I would have lost him, as all the other officers did. - I received your picture and it is greatly admired by all, nearly all remark that "She is too good looking for you." Well, I don't think so....

I must tell you of a nice lot of presents that came to me nicely boxed up this week sent by a lady in Kentucky whom I have never seen.

When I opened the box, I found it contained a Splendid "dressing gown", a fine tooth brush, a good pocket comb, a cigar case, full of fine cigars, a Large Meerschaum pipe, and a little box of Turkish Smoking Tobacco, 2 pr fine woolen Socks, 6 pr. Fine cotton socks, 7 fine Hemstitched linen Hkgs already marked, - 2 Large white silk hkfs, a package of Stamped envelopes and a quire of fine paper like this. So you find that you and I have friends that we have never seen. - Her name is Mrs. Annie H. Todd. She is a good lady. - The tooth brush and Linen Hkfs I intend for you.

I send you a ring which I have made myself, having little to do, I sometimes amuse myself by whittling out rings.

I sent Lewis a paper today.

I am your afft. husband H. C. Lockhart

Fort Warren, June 27, 1862

My dear Wife:

I have not had a letter from you for several days, your last was dated on the 8th. I hardly expected one today, but felt very much like it was about time. I had a letter this week from Mr. West but it was of older date than yours. He gave me much loved news of interest such as the prospect of the present growing crop, which must be pretty well advanced. I have always felt like I would have the pleasure of eating "roasting ears" with you this summer I still hope to do so. - In one of your letters you spoke of your good vegetable dinners which you hoped to share with me- I miss them much here[.] We have no vegetables at all except irish potatoes and they are of the old crop and it is now too late in the season for them to be "good." If they were ever so good, I cannot enjoy them like I would at home they are like all of our other dishes badly prepared. Then we have no corn bread. We get Baker's bread all the time which though very wholesome is not palatable to me at all times, we buy flour and try to have warm rolls every morning, but they are miserable made.— It is beef, beef, beef!!! all the time which tho fat and nice is badly prepared. We get some hams, but they are not like those we cure in Tennessee, these are salt and spungy, when boiled it appears "slippery." This I think is caused by the hogs being mostly raised on "swill." Not withstanding all this we are doing as well as I expected and better as I have now been a prisoner over four months and absent from home over five months. I think my time is nearly out. The way time is rolling on the term of my enlistment will soon be out.

We have some fresh news yesterday and today that indicates that there will be perhaps soon a general exchange of prisoners but as both governments seem to have been acting too much on the "rules of contrariness" I do not allow myself to become too hopeful, but if there are any exchanges made. I think my chances are very good. Last week Col. Kane of a Pennsylvania Regiment who was wounded in a recent battle in Virginia and taken prisoner was sent home by our generals on parole of honor for exchange. - I wrote to him at Philadelphia, and he answered my letter very promptly and politely, and stated that he was confined to bed by the wound but that he had written to Washington City on the subject and "hoped it would receive immediate attention" so I may be able to arrange a special one with him after it is evident that there will be no general Exchange.

Mr. West said in his letter that you were having some trouble with "Abe." I'm sorry to hear that. I had hoped that he would behave himself especially as I had been kind to get him where his wife is. You must try and bear up under the trial as well as you can and I have confidence that you are as well able to take the world for what it is worth as any one of your sex.— Tell "Abe" and Mary I have heard from them and that, I will remember them for the wrongs you have suffered at their hands in my absence.

I wrote Mr. West a long letter, which I asked him to show to you; the letter is to some extent descriptive of life at Fort Warren and gives a glance at the appearance of things outside in the bay.

We have news paper accounts here of a battle near Charleston lately and of extensive preparations on both sides for a terrible fight at Richmond, which is to take place soon perhaps.

The regiment that Guss McCaulay and Fred Boone are in were in a terrible fight at Fair Oaks. The regiment lost 125 in killed and wounded. I have not specially about who was killed or who was wounded there were no names given.— I only mention this as it may be of interest to their parents tho' it may be best for you not to tell them of it as they might be anxious about their children.

Some of our prisons here have been unfortunate.— They left here to be exchanged specially and while parole in Baltimore waiting to hear from Richmond, got to "cutting up" and attending parties, and I reckon imbibing a good deal, and they were sent to Fort Delaware.— I have never seen the place, but, should not like to exchange this place for that with the lights I have before me. While in prison, I prefer to stay here and be in the charge of the officers with whom I have become acquainted.

Give my love to all, and remember me kindly to Dr. F. M. Mickle and lady.—and kiss Miss Fannie for me.

I sent you a ring in my last. I made it myself. I hope it is ere(?) This to hand.

Kiss my dear little children and tell Lewis to kiss you for me. Did Lewis get the picture paper I sent him?—I have been trying to think of something to send Mary but have nothing light enough to go by mail that would please her.

Your aff. Husband H. C. Lockhart
